The above specimen lines show the usual bodies used in the texts of books and newspapers; (1) being set in Great Primer, (2) in English, (3) in Pica, (4) in Small Pica, (5) in Long Primer, (6) in Bourgeois, (7) in Brevier, (8) in Minion, (9) in Nonpareil, (10) in Pearl, and (11) in Diamond.

The black squares represent the square of the body of the type, one of the units of measurement; this unit is called an em, the letter m being exactly square. The standard unit of measurement is the Pica; but this varies in width with different British type-founders (and except Nonpareil) other bodies bear no fixed fractional relationship to Pica, as in the modern American Point System where the 'point' = $\frac{1}{16}$ Pica or $\frac{1}{16}$ inch, and the type bodies are all multiples of the point. On the Continent the point is $\frac{1}{12}$ of a Cicero, a body between Pica and English. Differences in width render type 'fat' or 'lean,' or if strongly marked, 'extended' or 'condensed.' The standard height of a type—or 'height to paper'—in Britain and U.S.A. is $\frac{1}{16}$ inch.

The following is a list of type bodies, with their nearest equivalents in points, and the number of lines to the foot of the respective bodies as made in actual metal types (Messrs Miller and Richard's standard):

Great Primer (18 pts.)	5½	Brevier (8 pts.)	111
English (14 pts.)	64	Minion (7 pts.)	122
Pica (12 pts.)	72	Nonpareil (6 pts.)	144
Small Pica (11 pts.)	83	Pearl (5 pts.)	178
Long Primer (10 pts.)	89	Diamond (4½ pts.)	207
Bourgeois (9 pts.)	102½

A 'font' of type is an indefinite quantity having all the proper proportions of 'sorts,' including capitals and small capitals, lower-case, spaces, points and references, figures, accents, hyphens, ligatures (& fi, fi fi), &c. The proportion of letters ranges from 200 to 2 to 12,000 e's. The smaller letters are called lower-case, from the case in which the compositor has them arranged; the capitals and small capitals being in a different or upper case.

SYMBOLS USED IN MEDICINE AND PHARMACY.

℞ Scruple; ℞i, one scruple; ℞ij, two scruples; ℞ss, half a scruple; ℞ss, a scruple and a half.
ʒ Dram or drachm; ʒi, one dram; ʒij, two drams; ʒss, half a dram; ʒss, a dram and a half.

℥ A minim; a drop.
āā (Gr. ana), of each a like quantity.
℞ (L. recipe), take.

The above symbols are employed almost always in medical prescriptions. A prescription consists of the following parts: (1) The Superscription; (2) The Inscription; (3) The Subscription; (4) The Signature. The Superscription, which consists of the letter ℞, is a relic of the days of astrology. It originally was used to represent the symbol of the planet Jupiter. By common consent it is now regarded as representing the imperative mood of the Latin verb recipere, to take. The Inscription is a statement of the names of the substances to be used, with their quantities. The Subscription is made up of the directions for the guidance of the dispenser. The Signature includes the directions to the patient. This part of the prescription should be written in English; the other parts are in Latin. Sometimes the signature also is in Latin. The body or prescription contains the following: the Base, or principal active ingredient; the Ad-

CORRECT CEREMONIOUS FORMS OF ADDRESS.

THE following are the correct ceremonious modes of addressing and beginning letters to persons of title or holding offices:

Ambassador, British—Address: 'His Excellency' (in other respects according to his rank), H.B.M.'s Ambassador and Plenipotentiary. Begin: 'Sir,' 'My Lord,' &c., according to rank. Refer personally to as 'Your Excellency.' An Ambassador's wife, when resident abroad, is sometimes, but not very correctly, designated 'Your Excellency.'

Archbishop—'His Grace the Lord Archbishop of —.' Begin: 'My Lord Archbishop.' Refer to as 'Your Grace.' In formal documents the Archbishop of Canterbury is addressed as 'The Most Reverend Father in God (here insert his Christian name), by Divine Providence Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, Primate of all England and Metropolitan; the Archbishop of York as 'The Most Reverend Father in God (Christian name), by Divine permission Lord Archbishop of York, Primate of England and Metropolitan.' But an Irish Archbishop appointed since 1868 is only 'The Most Reverend the Archbishop of —' unless he be a temporal peer, in which case he is 'The Right Hon. and Most Rev.'

Archdeacon—'The Venerable the Archdeacon of —.' Begin: 'Venerable Sir.'

Baron—'The Right Hon. Lord —,' or 'The Lord —.' Begin: 'My Lord.' Refer to as 'Your Lordship.'

Baron's Daughter—If unmarried, 'The Hon.' (Christian name and surname); if married, 'The Hon. Mrs.' (husband's surname). Begin: 'Madam.' If married to a Baronet or a Knight, 'The Hon. Lady' (husband's surname). Begin: 'My Lady.' If the wife of a peer, or of the son of a Duke or Marquess, address as such.

Baron's Son—'The Hon.' (Christian name and surname). Begin: 'Sir.' But the eldest sons of Barons in the Peerage of Scotland are usually addressed as 'The Hon. the Master of' (peerage title).

Baron's Son's Wife—'The Hon. Mrs.' (husband's surname), or, if necessary for distinction, the husband's Christian name should also be used. Begin: 'Madam.' If the daughter of an Earl, Marquess, or Duke, address as such.

Baroness, either in her own right or her husband's—'The Right Hon. the Baroness —,' 'The Right Hon. Lady —,' or 'The Lady —.' Begin: 'My Lady.' Refer to as 'Your Ladyship.'

Baronet—'Sir' (Christian name and surname), Bart. Commence: 'Sir.'

Baronet's Wife—'Lady' (surname). Begin: 'Madam.' Refer to as 'Your Ladyship.'

Bishop, Colonial—As Scottish bishop.

Bishop, English—'The Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of London,' or 'The Lord Bishop of London.' Begin: 'My Lord Bishop.' Refer to as 'Your Lordship.' In formal documents a Bishop is 'The Right Rev. Father in God (Christian name), by Divine permission Lord Bishop of —.'

Bishop, Irish, consecrated before 1868—As English Bishop.

Bishop, Irish, consecrated since 1863—'The Right Rev. the Bishop of —,' or in case of the Bishops of Meath and Tuam 'The Most Rev.' Begin: 'Right Rev. Sir,' or 'Most Rev. Sir.'

Bishop, Retired—'The Right Rev. Bishop —,' or 'The Right Rev. —, D.D.' Begin: 'Right Rev. Sir.'

Bishop, Scottish—'The Right Rev. the Bishop of Edinburgh,' or 'The Right Rev. Bishop' (surname). The Bishop who holds the position of Primus is generally addressed, 'The Most Rev. the Primus.' The use of 'Lord Bishop' and 'My Lord' is incorrect.

Bishop Suffragan—'The Right Rev. the Bishop Suffragan of —.' Begin: 'Right Rev. Sir.'

Bishops' Wives and Children have no titles.

Cardinal—'His Eminence Cardinal —.' Begin: 'My Lord Cardinal,' or 'My Lord.' Refer to as 'Your Eminence.'

Clergy—'The Rev.' (Christian name and surname). Begin: 'Rev. Sir.' If son of a Duke or Marquess, 'The Rev. Lord' (Christian name and surname). If the son of an Earl, Viscount, or Baron, 'The Rev. the Hon.' (Christian name and surname) is beginning to supersede 'The Hon. and Rev.' The Moderator of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland during his year of office is styled 'Right Rev.;' ex-moderators are usually spoken of as 'Very Rev.'

Companion of an Order of Knighthood—The initials, C.B., C.M.G., C.S.I., or C.I.E., as it may be, are subjoined to the ordinary form of address.

Consul, British—'—, Esq., H.B.M.'s Agent and Consul-General,' 'Consul-General,' 'Consul,' or 'Vice-Consul,' as it may be.

Countess—'The Right Hon. the Countess of —.' Begin: 'Madam.' Refer to as 'Your Ladyship.'

Dean—'The Very Rev. the Dean of —.' Begin: 'Very Rev. Sir.'

Doctor—The initials D.D., M.D., LL.D., Mus.D., are placed after the ordinary form of address, as 'The Rev. John Smith, D.D.,' 'John Brown, Esq., LL.D.' But 'The Rev. Dr. Smith,' 'Dr. John Brown,' are also frequently used.

Dowager—On the marriage of a peer or Baronet, the widow of the previous holder of the title becomes 'Dowager,' and is addressed, 'The Right Hon. the Dowager Countess of —,' 'The Dowager Lady —.' As more than one Dowager may hold the same title, the term is less used than formerly, and the Christian name is instead coming to be employed as a distinction—e.g. 'The Right Hon. Helen Countess of —.'

Duchess—'Her Grace the Duchess of —.' Begin: 'Madam.' Refer to as 'Your Grace.'

Duke—'His Grace the Duke of —.' Begin: 'My Lord Duke.' Refer to as 'Your Grace.'

Duke's Daughter—'The Lady' (Christian name and surname), the surname being that of her husband if married. Begin: 'Madam.' Refer to as 'Your Ladyship.' If married to a peer, she is addressed according to her husband's rank only. This, however, does not hold in the case of peers by courtesy; and a Duke's daughter married to the eldest son of an Earl, after the prefix 'Lady,' sometimes takes her own Christian name, followed by her husband's courtesy title.

Duke's Eldest Son and his Children—The courtesy title is treated as if it were an actual peerage; his eldest son taking the grandfather's third title, and being addressed as if a peer.

Duke's Eldest Son's Wife—As if her husband's courtesy title were an actual peerage.

Duke's Younger Son—'Lord' (Christian name and surname). Begin: 'My Lord.' Refer to as 'Your Lordship.'

Duke's Younger Son's Wife—'Lady' (husband's Christian name and surname). Begin: 'Madam.' Refer to as 'Your Ladyship.'

Correct Ceremonious Forms of Address.

Earl—‘The Right Hon. the Earl of —,’ or ‘The Earl of —.’ Begin: ‘My Lord.’ Refer to as ‘Your Lordship.’ [For Wife, see Countess.]

Earl’s Daughter—As Duke’s daughter.

Earl’s Eldest Son, and Earl’s Eldest Son’s Wife—As if the courtesy title were an actual peerage.

Earl’s Younger Son and his Wife—As Baron’s son and his wife.

Governor of a Colony, Governor-General of a Dominion—‘His Excellency [ordinary designation], Governor (General) of —.’ Begin according to rank, and refer to as ‘Your Excellency.’

In correspondence with equals or personal friends letters are begun less formally—e.g., ‘My dear Lord,’ ‘Dear Lord —,’ ‘Dear Sir James.’ We are less ceremonious than our ancestors a few generations ago, when letters to the nearest relatives and most intimate friends were begun and ended in the most formal manner. Designations like ‘Mrs General —,’ ‘Mrs Captain —,’ ‘Mrs Dr —,’ which were not uncommon in mid-Victorian days, were always improper. Persons holding offices other than those enumerated are addressed in the usual form, ‘Sir,’ ‘Dear Sir,’ or ‘My dear Sir,’ according to the more or less formal terms on which the writer may be with his correspondent. A firm is addressed ‘Gentlemen’ or ‘Dear Sirs.’
